Getting there

The best way to get to Prickwillow Engine Museum is by car. The Museum is on the B1382 in Prickwillow village, by the bridge over the River Lark. There is free parking on the site. If you are arriving at Ely by train, there is no regular public transport service between Ely and Prickwillow. Taxis are available at the station. You would need to book a return journey from Stretham Old Engine.

Stretham Old Engine is only accessible by car. There will be parking available on the day at a neighbouring farm. Instructions will be given nearer the time.

Information about both venues can be found on their websites

www.strethamoldengine.com/visit-us

Access

Access to the meeting room at Prickwillow involves six steps with a handrail.

Lunch

There are no eateries nearby where you can find lunch so Prickwillow Engine Museum has agreed to provide a buffet lunch for conference attendees which is included in the price. They are able to cater for various dietary requirements, please provide details when you book. Alternatively, you can bring your own packed lunch to eat on site and just pay the basic conference cost. We would urge you to opt for the Museum buffet as it helps to support a worthy museum and we can confirm it is tasty and very good value!
